

Letter to the editor.

P.O. Box 9
St. Alba
3 9 8

The Editor,
The Guardian,
119 Farringdon Rd.,
London ECI

Dear Sir,

The Malign side of the Women's Movement

During the first 20 years of my career after I only once gained any promotion at all - a clear failure. I am a male WASP Cambridge science graduate I held all the aces, this failure be attributed to prejudice against me.

I do not believe it would be possible, in the climate of virulent feminism, for the same to be a woman's career. It does not seem possible for the possibility of a woman careerist failing.

It has been variously estimated that one third of the discussion in my home is on the subject 'women'. This in itself is debilitating - it will of experience and knowledge, and therefore of care of those women who indulge in such excesses.

This continual pressure on members of my household concern themselves with the 'unfair to women' pressure

