

Howards,
Barrabamba,
Torquay.
Feb. 7/25.

Dear Dr. Seale,

I am writing to thank you on behalf of us all for the kind letter of sympathy from both of you, & must also not forget to thank you for all you have done so kindly during the difficult time before uncle's death.

No will has been found & my cousin Basil Heaviside, son of the late Mr. Heaviside, has been down to the funeral & also to take out letters of administration through our solicitor, Mr. Wood. At present all letters & papers of Dr. Heaviside have been carefully tied up & preserved, but nothing can be further done at this stage. You may rest assured that nothing will be lost & I am hoping eventually that if the papers go to London they will be lodged with the I.C.

but as I said before, nothing can be done ^{now} & I cannot promise anything as to the future.

As you have no doubt heard, uncle was buried last Friday at Parqiton Cemetery, in the grave of his father & mother.

I am sorry Mrs Seale & yourself have been so unwell. No doubt the trying work entailed by the illness of uncle pulled you down a good bit. Let us hope you are both quite well now.

The wreath you asked me to get was placed on the grave with 6 others, including one from the I.L.C., brought by Mr. Tree.

If you know of any magazine with a good article on uncle's work or life, kindly let me know the name.

With kindest regards to Mrs Seale & yourself,

Yours sincerely

A.earnside

A.earnside

Searle did an enormous amount for Heaviside in his last few years, getting people and institutions to donate money to him and getting him a Civil List Pension of £200 p.a. Heaviside deeply resented this, and cut off from Searle for a while because of his activity. Searle worked to camouflage where the money came from.

Searle was active during Heaviside's death.

Ivor Catt 29 March 2016